Gastroenterology 2019

Course Description

Gastroenterology 2019 provides a comprehensive update for clinicians that care for patients with GI disorders. It covers state-of-the-art clinical strategies, updates and expanded options for treatment and diagnosis, and guidance for complex and unusual cases. This program is led by the nationally and internationally recognized GI leaders at Harvard Medical School and its major teaching hospitals: Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Brigham and Women's Hospital, and Massachusetts General Hospital. Learners leave this program with comprehensive updates and evidence-based approaches from master clinicians. Education is results focused, incorporating cases and guidance that show participants how to achieve improved clinical and quality-of-life outcomes for patients with GI disorders.

Learning Objectives

Upon completion of this activity, participants will be able to:

- Interpret major advances in the field of gastroenterology
- Incorporate the most up-to-date diagnostic approaches to GI disorders
- Identify therapeutic options for GI disorders in an evidence-based manner
- Manage patients with both common and rare GI disorders using established guidelines

Updates and Clinical Strategies to Optimize Patient
Care and Outcomes

Dear Colleague,

The field of gastroenterology is continually evolving, and this impacts many different areas of our practice. New treatments, including biologic therapies for IBD and antivirals for hepatitis B and C, emerge almost yearly. In the endoscopic arena, there are many exciting developments to enhance polyp detection and resection, to manage weight loss with bariatric devices, and to ablate Barrett's esophagus. Scientific advances have also brought provocative new approaches such as fecal transplant into our therapeutic armamentarium.

As gastroenterologists, we are entrusted to manage an incredibly broad array of disorders that span the gastrointestinal, hepatic, and pancreaticobiliary systems. Our goal is to ensure that you are up to date with the current approaches for the diagnosis and management of these disorders so that you are prepared to provide the best care for your patients. Importantly, our talented faculty is highly responsive to you, and we consider it a priority to take the time to address individual questions you may have.

We look forward to your participation. Boston is absolutely delightful in June, and we hope to see you then!

Sincerely,

Daniel C. Chung, MD

GASTROENTEROLOGY 2019

ACCREDITATION

ACCREDITATION COUNCIL FOR CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION

The Harvard Medical School is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The Harvard Medical School designates this live activity for a maximum of 29.75 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

AMERICAN BOARD OF INTERNAL MEDICINE

Successful completion of this CME activity, which includes participation in the evaluation component, enables the participant to earn up to 29.75 Medical Knowledge MOC points in the American Board of Internal Medicine's (ABIM) Maintenance of Certification (MOC) program. Participants will earn MOC points equivalent to the amount of CME credits claimed for the activity. It is the CME activity provider's responsibility to submit participant completion information to ACCME for the purpose of granting ABIM MOC points.

NURSE PRACTITIONERS and REGISTERED NURSES

For the purpose of recertification, the American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Certification Board and American Nurses Credentialing Center accept AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ issued by organizations accredited by the ACCME (Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education). We would also suggest that learners check with their state licensing board to ensure they accept reciprocity with AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ for re-licensure.

PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS

The National Commission on Certification of Physician Assistants (NCCPA) states that AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ are acceptable for continuing medical education requirements for recertification. We would also suggest that learners check with their state licensing board to ensure they accept reciprocity with AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ for re-licensure.

REASONS TO ATTEND

- Updated guidelines for use of biologics in IBD
- Improved management of IBS, pelvic floor disorders, and functional dyspepsia
- Expanded options to diagnose hereditary colon cancer
- Management of fatty liver disease in 2019
- Best practices for treatment of HBV and HCV
- Steps to ensure delivery of high-quality endoscopic care
- Techniques to effectively control GI bleeding
- When FMT is indicated for treatment
- New strategies to treat common GI problems
- Guidance to diagnose and treat complex cases
- Update of national guidelines

CANADIAN ACCREDITATION

The Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada recognizes conferences and workshops held outside of Canada that are developed by a university, academy, hospital, specialty society or college as accredited group learning activities.

EUROPEAN ACCREDITATION

Through an agreement between the American Medical Association and the European Union of Medical Specialists, physicians may convert AMA PRA Category 1 Credit™ to an equivalent number of European CME Credits® (ECMECs®). Information on the process of converting AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ to ECMECs® can be found at: www.eaccme.eu.
